Bavarians Under Crown Prince Capture Several Positions; Russ Driven Off at Dvinsk

BERLIN, via Wireless to London, Sept. 23.—German troops closing in upon Dvinsk from the west have penetrated the Russian advance positions, taking 2,122 prisoners, it was officially announced this afternoon. The czar's troops are falling back upon the city's outer defenses which have been under long range bombardment since Sunday. The fall of the city is thought near.

The Bavarians under Prince Leopold have captured several Russian positions west of Valeika, in the region northeast of Slonim.

The Russians made vigorous attacks on the newly captured German positions southwest of Dvinsk, but were driven off.

We have completely broken the Russian resistance between the region north of Oschajona and east of Subotniki, the war office stated.

Bavarian troops under Prince Leopold have stormed Russian positions on the Mtschanka river, on both sides of the Brest-Litovsk-Minsk railway, and captured the city of Ostrow. Other Bavarian forces have crossed the Oginski canal near Telchany, pushing the Russians back.

ESCAPES IN SKIFF FROM LAUNCH HIT BY STORM BOLT

Joseph Hetzenecker Has a Wild Night on River Returning from Hunting Trip in Fierce Storm

LAUNCH BURNS TO WATER-EDGE

Hunter and Dog Cut Loose from Blazing Craft and Escape in Tiny Skiff

With his hunting dog, "Dan," and the blackened cylinders of his motorboat to remind him of a Mississippi river adventure which nearly cost him his life, Joseph Hetzenecker, 629 North Ninth street, bottler for the Michel Brewing company, is back in La Crosse after a forty-eight hour battle with the elements which started at 7 o'clock Sunday night several miles below Crosby Point, when lightning which accompanied one of the most severe rainstorms of the season struck and set fire to his motorboat and drove Hetzenecker and his dog into a frail duck boat.

On Long Hunt

Hetzenecker left La Crosse Saturday night with "Dan" for his favorite duck grounds far below Brownsville, in a Mississippi river launch. He and "Dan" hunted all day Sunday. Late in the afternoon, Hetzenecker started the engine of his motorboat and steered upstream towards home and a hot supper.

The clouds grew darker and darker. A wind sprang up and he knew it would be best to steer into the shore, but the hot supper got the uppermost of the argument, and he continued on up the river.

Simultaneously with a downpour of rain lightning flashes began to appear and Hetzenecker speeded up his engine against the whitecaps which began to appear on the water. With complete darkness, the lightning grew stronger and stronger. Several bolts apparently struck near him, and just below Crosby Point his motorboat was hit. "Dan" crouching at his master's feet in the bottom of the launch, and Hetzenecker himself were stunned slightly. The boat, oil and gasoline soaked, burst into flames.

Escape in Skiff

Snatching "Dan" by the nape of his neck, Hetzenecker threw him into the hunting skiff which was tied to the rear of the launch. He followed, cut the skiff loose from the now blazing launch, and started in the whirl of the storm for the shore.

A small paddle was all that was left for Hetzenecker to propel himself and "Dan" to La Crosse and home, and he decided not to venture farther that night. With the tiny boat, which he turned upside down, as a shelter, Hetzenecker and his dog bunked all Sunday night in the woods near where his boat grounded, while the rain battered and drenched them.

Hetzenecker rescued the two cylinders of his launch from the charred hulk the following morning, and after a forage trip to a farmhouse for food, started with his single paddle and with "Dan" behind him for La Crosse. They arrived here Tuesday night.

GITTLE RESIGNS FROM RAIL BOARD

Progressive Leader Quits and Rumor Has It His Presence Was Obnoxious to Administration

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 23.—(Special.)—L. E. Gittle, formerly of Edgerton, one of the best known progressives in the state, today resigned as secretary of the railroad commission, to take effect January 1. It is rumored about the capital that the presence of this progressive leader was obnoxious to the administration. It is reported that either W. J. Anderson, formerly private secretary to Governor Scofield Upham, or Harold Gelsie, now connected with the commission, will be selected to succeed Gittle.

BERLIN MAKES CONCESSIONS TOUCHING ON THE FRYE CASE BUT REFUSES TO ACKNOWLEDGE TREATIES' VIOLATION

CONSENT GIVEN TO ARBITRATE LOSS EXPERTS ARE NAMED

U-Boat Commanders Have Been Instructed to Not Molest Ships Carrying Conditional Contraband

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Germany makes concessions regarding attacks upon American ships carrying conditional contraband in a note bearing upon the William P. Frye case received from Berlin and made public today by the state department. The German government consents to arbitration of the loss of the Frye and names experts to reach an agreement as to the pecuniary loss, but does not acknowledge any treaty was violated in the sinking of the Frye. The note suggests settlement of this disputed point by Hague arbitration.

The note from Ambassador Gerard to Secretary Lansing reads: "Following note from the foreign office received today:

"Berlin, Sept. 23, 1915.—The undersigned has the honor to make the following reply to the note of his excellency, Mr. James W. Gerard, ambassador of the United States of America, dated 13th ultimo, on the subject of the claim for reparation for the sinking of the American merchantman, William P. Frye.

Would Appoint Umpire

"With regard first to the ascertainment of the damage by experts, the German government believes that it should dispute with the nomination of an umpire. In the cases of the ascertainment of damages hitherto arranged between the German government and a neutral government from similar causes, the experts named by the two countries have always reached an agreement as to the amount of the damage without difficulty; should it not be possible, however, to reach an agreement on some point it could probably be settled by diplomatic negotiation. Assuming that the American government agrees to this the German government names as its expert Dr. Kepny of Bremen, director of the North German Lloyd; it begs to await the designation of the American expert.

"The German government declares that it agrees to the proposal of the American government to separate the question of indemnity from the question of the interpretation of the Prussian-American treaties of 1785, 1795 and 1828. It therefore again expressly states that in making payment it does not acknowledge the violation of the treaty as contended by the American side, but it will admit that the settlement of the question of indemnity does not prejudice the arrangement of the differences of opinion concerning the interpretation of the treaty rights and that this dispute is left to be decided by The Hague tribunal of arbitration.

"The negotiations relating to the signing of the compromise provided by article 52 of The Hague arbitration convention would best be conducted between the foreign office and the American embassy at Berlin in view of the difficulties in the way of instructing the imperial ambassador at Washington. In case the American government agrees the foreign office is prepared to submit to the embassy a draft of such a compromise.

Can Destroy Contraband

"The American government's inquiry whether the German government will govern its naval operations in accordance with the German or the American interpretation of the treaty stipulations in question pending the arbitral proceedings has been carefully considered by the German government. From the standpoint of law and equity it is not prevented in its opinion from proceedings against American ships carrying contraband according to its interpretation, until the question is settled by arbitration. For the German government does not need to depart from the application of generally recognized rules of the law of maritime war, as the declaration of London, unless and insofar as an exception based on a treaty is established beyond all doubt; in the case of the present difference of opinion between the German and the American governments such an exception could not be taken to be established except on the ground of the arbitral award. Moreover, the disadvantages to Germany which would ensue from the American interpretation of the treaty stipulations would be so much greater as to be out of proportion to those which the German interpretation would entail for the United States. For whereas the American

CITY SAVES ON BRICK BUT RUNS INTO OPPOSITION

Buys Brick for Small Bit of Paving at Reduced Price and Legal Fight Is Promised

DIDN'T ADVERTISE FOR BIDS

"Won't Let the Work Go Through" Is Announcement of Contractor Who Charges Irregularity

Mayor Bentley's charges that a brick combine has been mulcting the city by unnecessarily high prices for paving brick were recalled today when the board of public works admitted that brick for the paving of the Rose and Gould street intersection on the viaduct approach had been purchased for $22.50 a thousand. Heretofore the city has paid prices running as high as $32 a thousand, the president of the board of public works said today, and the prices have been for the most part around $26.

Fight Is Promised

Acting under the authorization of the council to go ahead with the work, the board of public works on the Rose street work has made the first attempt to carry out Mayor Bentley's suggested plan to have the city purchase its own materials for paving, but the legality of the method is already under question. A fight is promised against completion of the intersection paving, the contract for which has been let to the Western Construction company. Other paving contractors charge irregularity, in that the city did not advertise for bids on the work, as it is claimed is necessary under the charter.

Rumors that an injunction would be filed against the city could not be verified today, but William F. Funk of the La Crosse Stone company declared that the present plans for paving the intersection would not be allowed to go through.

To a direct question if he would ask an injunction against the city, Mr. Funk would not reply.

"I will not answer that question," he told a reporter, "but the city will not be allowed to go through with the work."

The action has been taken in violation of the city charter.

Authorized by Council

Paving of the intersection was authorized by the council at the last meeting, when the board of public works was instructed to go ahead with the work under an arrangement with the street railway company by which the latter agreed to pay the city the cost of its share of the work.

The Streator block which has been purchased by the board of public works for the paving was tested some time ago in Chicago, when Mayor Bentley conducted an investigation into the merits of various paving blocks in connection with his efforts to substantiate charges that a brick combine existed. The block is said to have passed all tests with flying colors.

Girl Who Kept Self a Prisoner To Be Examined

Alarmed because Miss Julia Kampshroer, 24, has refused to allow anyone to enter her room and to leave it herself except upon occasions days apart, Mrs. Charles Kagel, 722 State street, today called City Physician R. E. Flynn. Miss Kampshroer refused to allow Dr. Flynn to enter. He called the police, who broke down the door and took Miss Kampshroer to central station. An examination to determine her sanity will probably be held.

Mrs. Kagel said this afternoon that for months her roomer has been acting queerly. For four months Miss Kampshroer has refused to leave the house, she declared, and for weeks past has kept herself locked in her room. She refused to allow anyone to enter, and insisted that food be left outside the door.

INTER-STATE FAIR WILL SET MARK IF WEATHER HOLDS

Biggest Cattle Exhibit in History Comes Through Former F. and M. Quarantine

Providing La Crosse is favored with good weather, the 1915 interstate fair, opening next Tuesday, will be the greatest event on record. This is the opinion of C. S. Van Auker, secretary and manager of the fair association, who with Frank T. Main, his assistant, has visited all the principal fairs of Wisconsin in a successful endeavor to induce exhibitors in all branches to show here.

Fairs visited during the last few weeks by Mr. Van Auker and Mr. Main are Baraboo, Chippewa Falls, Elkhorn, Galesville, Jefferson, Madison, Milwaukee, Monroe, Portage, Richland Center, Sparta, Tomah, Viroqua, Watertown and the Minnesota state fair at Minneapolis.

All Cattle Here

"Several things are helping us in our plan to make this year's fair the biggest on record," said Mr. Van Auker today. "Cattle from outside states have been barred from many of the larger fairs in Wisconsin, and the fact that we are allowing cattle from other states to exhibit here will make this exhibit a larger one than ever before."

Cattle were barred in Wisconsin this year on account of the recent dreading plague of foot and mouth disease. According to Mr. Van Auker, it was rumored around the state a few days ago that La Crosse was barring cattle also, and it was definitely stated by his office today that such was not the case.

The Judges

A complete list of judges in the various departments of the fair, with the exception of the china painting department, was announced by Mr. Van Auker today.

They are:

Horses, T. J. Patterson, University Farm, St. Paul; cattle, beef breeds, Frank Smith, St. Cloud, Minn.; dairy cattle, R. A. Kolb, Medford, Wis.; sheep, Professor Frank Kleinheinz of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin, Madison; swine, J. M. Stewart, Ainsworth, Iowa; poultry, Edward H. Hoffman, La Crosse; farm grains and corn exhibit, Professor R. A. Moore, College of Agriculture, Madison; vegetables, A. J. Cram, Galesville; fruits, W. A. Marsh, Wausau; dairy products, Professor E. H. Farrington, College of Agriculture, Madison; culinary and children's department, Mrs. M. B. Howe, Eau Claire; domestic, Mrs. O. C. Hoehnig, Chippewa Falls.

M. G. Bellis, Wausau, Wis., well known throughout the Northwest as a race official, will act as starter for the track events, it was announced today.

Fair officials this year are devoting a great deal of energy to the special La Crosse county exhibit, which will be in charge of Professor T. H. Campion, principal of the county "ag-gie" school.

Farmers in every township in La Crosse are now collecting farm produce.

BULGARIAN RESERVISTS LEAVE GERMAN CITIES TO JOIN THEIR COLORS

BULGARIAN CZAR HOLDS KEY TO THE BALKAN SITUATION

Ferdinand Has Lived for Year Secluded Pondering Over Course in the War

HOLDS SECRET OF THE WAR

Czar Determined to Gain After the Disastrous Second War of the Balkans

(In view of the momentous situation in the Balkans, Henry Wood, United Press staff correspondent, who has just reached London after spending several months in the Balkans, has cabled the following character picture of the Bulgarian czar Ferdinand, who holds the key to the Balkan crisis. Wood spent several weeks in the Bulgarian capital, where he interviewed the Bulgarian premier, and learned very intimate details concerning Czar Ferdinand.—Editor's note.)

BY HENRY WOOD

United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Europe's eyes are turned today upon Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria, the man of mystery, the human enigma, the sphinx. For nearly a year he lived in seclusion in his castle at Vranja, pondering Bulgaria's future course of action. With dramatic swiftness he has now emerged to mobilize his army. His next command may affect the future destinies of all Europe.

Reports from European capitals today contained vague guesses at what the Bulgarian czar has locked in his breast—the great secret of the war. Army commanders are hurrying to Sofia, railways are carrying Bulgarian troops, and all indications apparently point to war. But those familiar with conditions at Sofia believe the czar alone knows today what Bulgaria's next move will be.

Jovial Character Gone

Until a year ago the Bulgarian ruler was a jovial, well-met fellow whose friends were legion. He received everyone, especially newspapermen. But there was a sudden change. From the soul of open-heartedness he became a riddle more puzzling and as silent as the sphinx.

He retired to the summer castle at Vranja. Orders were given that he would see no one, except his prime minister. From time to time he sent the Crown Prince Boris to Sofia with messages for those with whom he wished to communicate. He made an exception a few weeks ago when he received the new German ambassador to Constantinople, who brought him an autograph letter from the kaiser, but the exception only proved the rule.

Czar Ferdinand has never made any secret of his ambition to become dictator of the Balkans. During the first Balkan war he saw his star all but reach the zenith of his ascendancy. The Bulgarian papers even described the wonderful white horse and the priceless saddle on which he was to ride at the head of his armies into Constantinople. But the second Balkan war stripped him of his glory and he returned to his capital a disappointed ruler.

Sees Chance for Gain

In the present European war Czar Ferdinand saw a chance to retrieve his fortunes and those of his nation, by bartering first with the kaiser, and then with the allies. But he realized that he must make no mistake, and it was for this reason, I was told in Sofia, that he retired from communication with his fellow men to ponder the problem himself. A whole organization of secret agents and couriers brought him, through the prime minister, the reports on which he framed his decision.

SOFIA OFFICIALS WARNED BY SERBIA NOT TO TRESPASS

GREEK CABINET IN SECRET SESSION

Report Is Greek Officers on Leaves of Absence Have Been Notified to Leave for Athens

ATHENS, Sept. 23.—A new mobilization decree promulgated by Czar Ferdinand at midnight last night, calls to the Bulgarian colors twenty-seven classes of reserve troops. Under the ordinary meaning of the word "classes" it would appear that Bulgaria has summoned to the colors all her male citizens between the ages of 18 and 45.

BERLIN, via Wireless to Tuckerton, N. J., Sept. 23.—Large bodies of Bulgarian reservists left Berlin and other German cities today in answer to the mobilization summons. Vienna dispatches reported thousands of Bulgarians were enroute to the frontier.

The German papers devoted a large share of their space to the Balkan situation today. They assure Bulgaria that she has the sympathy of the German people in her efforts to regain Macedonia.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Developments in the Balkan crisis moved swiftly today, each new event bringing Bulgaria and Greece nearer war, with Rumania's attitude seemingly in doubt.

Serbia replied to the Bulgarian mobilization order by moving two divisions of troops within striking distance of the Bulgarian frontier. The commander of the Serbian border patrols warned Bulgarian officials that any trespass by Bulgarian border troops on Serbian territory would result seriously, in view of the present strained relations between the two countries.

The crown prince Alexander, according to Nish dispatches, plans to lead the Serbian armies in person if the Bulgars strike. He has gone to Serbian headquarters at Kragujevatz for a conference with army chiefs.

Greek Cabinet Meets

The Greek cabinet was in continuous session until after midnight and no reports of its action has been allowed to leave Athens at an early hour today. From several cities on the continent came reports that Greek army officers on leave of absence had been notified to hold themselves in readiness to leave for Athens at once.

Berlin complained that the censor was holding up dispatches from Sofia, but took the view that Bulgaria's "armed neutrality" meant nothing but war. Reports reached here that the Duke of Mecklenburg, enroute to Bucharest for an audience with the king, is authorized to make promises of important concessions to obtain assurances that Rumania will remain neutral.

Serbia Demands Explanation?

No confirmation has come from Nish of the report that Serbia has demanded an immediate explanation of the Bulgarian mobilization order. Unofficial reports that such a demand has been sent are generally believed to be true. Diplomats here believe Serbia will deliver an ultimatum to Bulgaria and that this communication will result in a declaration of war.

Despite the Bulgarian prime minister's statement that Bulgaria's mobilization order meant only "armed neutrality" the London press viewed the situation most pessimistically today.

MINED BOAT SINKS IN THAMES

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The Dutch steamer Koningen Emma, which struck a mine Tuesday, sank in the Thames today as she was being towed to the docks. Her passengers and crew had previously been taken off.

Rheumatism

A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It

In the spring of 1910 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried every remedy, but relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case. I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be this long-sought-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may then order it at a price of one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

THE SPRING WORK

BY ALISON GRANT

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

For the first time in nearly five years Elinor found herself free from responsibility, with leisure and money to spend as she pleased. Friends whose kindness was of the proverbial kind that comes so near killing, and many suggestions about what she should do to recover from the cares brought on by her long years of caring for her invalid mother, whose death had preceded that of her unloved husband by but a few weeks. Elinor longed to be all alone where nothing would suggest old associations, and, having vainly longed all her life to see New York, she determined to go at once and to be on the train before her protesting friends and relatives had an opportunity to offer their company as a means of guarding against loneliness.

Two hours later, a black porter was handing her and her suitcase up the steps of a sleeper of an east-bound train just as the engine began to puff its way out of the smoky Middle West city. Elinor sank into her seat with unspeakable relief. She thought of the many versions of what the clicking car wheels had seemed to say to people, but to her they seemed to say: "It's good to be living and good to be going!" Each time she repeated this to herself she felt farther away from the past and nearer to a new life.

Her four years of married life had been free from friction, but respect had been the strongest feeling she had felt for her husband. She shivered as she recalled that she had married steady Justin Moore, who was twenty years her senior, because it seemed the only solution of all the difficulties which piled themselves before her when her mother's illness was pronounced incurable. Moreover, the frequent change of scene and the constant attention required would have been out of the question had Elinor herself tried to provide for the mother. Justin Moore had long begged for the privilege of being Elinor's husband and brother and father all in one, and although she told him frankly that she did not love him as she felt she ought, she allowed him to claim her, and as she coddled into the unyielding car seat she was grateful that nothing in her conduct toward him could have let him know that each day of their married life was a day of bondage to her.

New York has a million interpretations of itself for the million moods and circumstances in which people enter into its life, but to Elinor it was a haven after a storm—a haven from which she would sail out into a new sea of life. She rode in the rubberneck wagons, went to the museums and libraries, to Union Square and Madison Square and Cooper Union, and a hundred other places of varied interest, and so much had she heard of those places that it seemed like meeting old friends to see them. As for her friends at home, they had only short notes from her telling where she had gone.

On a springlike day in late February, Elinor went out in a charming new soft black gown which had lured her into a fashionable shop, from which she had not escaped until she had secured neckwear and millinery and footwear, and dozens of other things which complete a woman's toilet and her peace of mind. She was giving her new finery its initial wearing for a matinee that afternoon, having taken special pains to find a theater where she could see a good old-fashioned play with a happy-ever-afterward ending.

Between the third and fourth acts the orchestra began a soft rendition of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," and as the almost human voice of the cello, and the golden notes of the harp gave out their message Elinor's thoughts flashed back to the springtime day, five years before, when she and Barry Elliott had stood together on the pier at Old Point Comfort watching the ships pass in and out of the harbor. She lived again through the evening of that day when she had stood on the moonlit deck of a Washington-bound steamer and bade good-bye to Barry, thus bringing to an end their acquaintance of a month while visiting at the Virginia plantation of Barry's cousin Alice, Elinor's school friend who had married shortly afterward and gone to India with her engineer husband.

WHEN YOU WASH YOUR HAIR DON'T USE SOAP

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain purified coconut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

intervened seemed but a troubled dream to Elinor. As the music breathed and tinkled, her tired body and hungry heart revived, and she felt again the magic of the love she had thought dead during all those five hard years. As the final curtain rose to show the hero and heroine united after having bridged the chasm which kept them apart during the early part of the play, Elinor felt a curious personal sense of having bridged the empty chasm in her own life and heart.

She remembered having heard, shortly after her marriage, of Barry's engagement to a beautiful southern girl, but that did not spoil her memory of that one perfect evening with him. He was then a penniless, embryo lawyer, just out of college, and he felt that he must attain some sort of professional standing before offering himself to Elinor, but each had understood that underneath their formal good-bye was a heart cry that even the long hand clasp could not fully express or suppress. She hoped he had been happy, was happy now.

As she went from the theater the languor of the springlike air paled the brilliant flush on her cheeks and brought into her blue eyes a wistfulness suggestive of the heart within that hungered for its own. She stopped to look at a window display of blossoming plants, and unconsciously as she looked she hummed the opening bars of the "Spring Song." Her deep contralto tone attracted a passing man, who was taking a hasty glance at the window. A glance at her brought him to a sudden stop. A second glance brought him to her side. That brought her eyes upward casually to regard so close a neighbor, and as her eyes met the clear brown eyes of Barry Elliott she brought her hands together with an impulsive movement that let the violets she held fall to the sidewalk. Somehow, words were a small part of their greeting, of replacing the violets in her hands, and of their walking off together down Broadway.

"And your husband?" ventured Barry. "He is with you here?"

"My husband died six months ago, my mother—seven. I came away to try to forget some of the cares of the last five years," said Elinor quietly. "But tell me of your own life, Barry. Is the lovely southern girl good to you?"

"Why, didn't Alice write you about my fiancée?"

"She never mentioned you after telling of your engagement."

"It's easily told," began Barry bluntly. "The lovely southern girl wanted everything lovely that money could buy, and when she got an opportunity to choose between penniless me and a man with a ready-made fortune, she chose him, leaving me to come to my senses and settle down to digging, which I have done constantly and profitably ever since."

"How strange Alice told me none of that," mused Elinor. "But perhaps she thought I had enough without knowing that you, too, were unhappy."

"Then my happiness did matter to you, Elinor?" asked Barry. "More than I could ever make you understand, Barry, but my duty kept me from even understanding it myself." In a few words Elinor told him quite simply what her life had been since they parted. "It seemed the only way then, but now I shudder at the awfulness of it all."

"And I've shuddered through all the years as I thought of you tied there, for Alice told me enough to make me miserable. But, come, we must forget unhappy days." And so they had dinner together in a bright and pretty cafe where spring blossoms were on the tables and around the edge of a miniature lake in the center of the room. As they rose to leave and Barry was placing Elinor's wrap about her the orchestra began softly to breathe out the "Spring Song."

GOOD-BYE! SUMMER!

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Today was the last day of summer with fall beginning exactly at 4:20 this afternoon.

Today should be exactly half sunshine and half shadow, the sun being twelve hours above the horizon and twelve below.

A CONFIRMED STATEMENT

Evidence La Crosse Readers Will Appreciate

Doan's Kidney Pills have done splendid work in this locality.

Have merited the unstinted praise they have received.

Here's evidence of their value that none can doubt.

It's testimony from this locality, twice-told and well confirmed.

Such endorsements are unique in the annals of medicine.

Should convince the most skeptical La Crosse reader.

John Sokolik, painter, 1106 Avon street, N. La Crosse, says: "My kidneys were weak and acted very irregularly. My back ached and I had pains through my loins. Doan's Kidney Pills fixed me up in good shape and I am glad to say that the cure has been permanent. I am just as glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills now as I was when I gave my former endorsement of them."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Sokolik had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

BRYAN SEES WILSON BUT IS RETICENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Former Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan spent nearly an hour with President Wilson at the White house today. He emerged in the best of humor and jokingly evaded the attempts of newspaper men to learn the nature of the conference.

"I don't want to discuss any subject at this time," he said, "for fear it might be connected with my talk with the president. I have no plans for a speaking campaign on the subject of national defense, but I don't want to bar myself from talking about it."

There are two modes of establishing a reputation, the praises of good men and the abuses of bad ones.

LANSING APPROVES IMPORTATION PACT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Secretary of State Lansing today signed a trade agreement between the United States and Russia permitting importation to this country many raw products needed by American manufacturers.

"Where is the dragon?" she kept asking him.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — How Masha Visited the Zoo To Find a Dragon.

"HOW would you like a story about a little Russian girl?" asked daddy. "Goodie, goodie!" cried both kiddies. "Her name was Masha, which means Mary, and she was born near the border of a vast plain that wheat grew on each summer. One year her father thought America a better land to raise his family in; so, with many little brothers and sisters, Masha got on a huge boat and about two weeks later became a little American."

"How old was she?" asked Evelyn. "About eight. Her father did not have much money, but as soon as he found a home for them he put all his children in school."

"She made friends very fast, for she was lovely to look at, with her dark curls and flashing eyes and happy disposition. All the children loved her, for she danced strange Russian dances, and a little girl took her to a club."

"Now, there was a man much interested in this club for little tenement children, and he used to take the boys and girls off on delightful picnics. He liked Masha so much that he invited her to go with him and spend Saturday in a big park where there was a wonderful zoo. So her mamma dressed her all up in a clean dress and a red hair ribbon, and when the man came to lead her off she was quite the belle of her street, with all the other children tagging along behind her, cheering."

"The man took along a nice box of sandwiches and cake and planned to keep Masha outdoors all day, for the air where she lived was not very pure."

"The first thing Masha did when they reached the park was to dart in and out among the cages, hunting, hunting something which she seemed not to find. She took the man's hand and led him three times around the big zoo. 'Where is the dragon?' she kept asking him. 'I want to see a dragon!' The man tried to comfort her with the truth that dragons are make believe animals. But Masha had read a great many fairy stories and believed in dragons even when she could not find one. At first the man was amused, but when he saw that she would not be happy without her heart's desire he tried to please her in other ways. But candy, soda water and all the other zoo animals together could not bring back her joy. 'Please, I want I should go home,' she kept begging him. 'What's the use I should stay in a park all day with a man which can't find a dragon?'"

"She couldn't use very good English yet?" asked Jack. "She had been in America only four months," explained daddy. "When she took no more interest in the park he carried her home."

SAFETY FIRST

We are all agreed that the festoon lights furnish street illumination that would be desirable during fair week,
and to no citizen is this more important than to C. S. Van Auker, secretary of the Interstate Fair association. Therefore we should give to his words, those of an unwilling witness, the fullest weight.

Secretary Van Auker is convinced that the festoon lights are in a condition of dilapidation which renders them dangerous to human life. This conclusion he reached upon the advice of electricians whose expert judgment commands respect.

Plainly there is nothing to do but take the festoon lights down. We can not afford to be reckless in the matter. We owe it to ourselves and to the city's guests to take no risks,
to remove the menace.

WASH THE LADY'S DISHES

We insist upon taking ourselves seriously about boys for maids in the homes of La Crosse.

These boys who want an education can do housework. They may have some things to learn, but most girls who go into service have something to learn. The boys can do the work
—if they will.

Refusal to take this class of work must be a matter of pride. It is a false pride, based upon empty precedent. Women are taking men's jobs, why may not boys take girls' jobs?

We insist that if any woman who has desired to take a school girl into her home to work part of her time for keep or a modest money consideration, and who has been unable to get such a girl, will instead secure the services of a clean and willing schoolboy, she will find the experiment satisfactory.

We insist that any boy who must have work to help him through school, and who will undertake household work, will not only succeed, but will find it preferable to many out-of-door jobs.

Why should we be bound by arbitrary sex lines in the matter of employment? There are a few big aims in life. The way to most of them demands education. To the youth of modest means education means equality—an even break in life. To him it is not a matter of choice. Any honest means to schooling, no matter what its temporary embarrassments, is of importance overshadowing such venial matters as custom.

Boys delight to do washing, wash dishes, sweep and cook in a summer camp. Why not in a home?
Let's sweep this whole mass of artificial social obstruction aside and adjust ourselves to the available means for reaching a desirable and important end.

WITHOUT DUE PROCESS OF LAW

The sporting editor of the TRI-BUNE arises to insist to his devoted following that it was not he who amended the federal game law affecting migratory birds.

We do not blame him. It's a sad story. A misguided reporter announcing the hours of sunrise and sunset for the duck season, appended the information that an hour's leeway at either end of the day would be permitted.

Bang, bang, bang!
Hunters by the score took him at his word, and Warden Ed Gautsch was on the job.

Our telephones buzzed that day.
Every mother's son who potted the festive mudhen before the appointed hour was on the wire with his big,
big kick.

They said, and we verified it,
that this leeway hour which generously we accorded them, was pure fiction. Uncle Sam would none of it, and Friend Bill Barber's program for the conservation of the game declined to be altered by the TRIBUNE'S impertinent amendment of the federal and state statutes.

It was a bad mess, so in pure justice we corroborate the sporting editor's disclaimer. He didn't do it.

The balm in Gilead lies in the proof that if not everybody in the world, at least everybody who hunts reads the TRIBUNE.

The Things Divine

These are the things I hold divine:
A trusting child's hand laid in mine,
Rich brown earth and wind-tossed
trees,

The taste of grapes and the drone of bees,
A rhythmic gallop, long June days,
A rose-hedged lane and lovers' lays,
The welcome smile on neighbors' faces,

Cool, wide hills and open places,
Breeze-blown fields of silver rye,
The wild sweet note of a plover's
cry,

Fresh spring showers and scent of
box,
The soft pale tint of the garden
phlox,

Lilacs blooming, a drowsy noon,
Rolling meadows and storm-washed heights,
A fountain's murmur on summer
nights,

A dappled fawn in the forest hush,
Simple words and the song of a thrush,
Rose-red dawns and a mate to share
With comrade soul my gypsy fair,
A waiting fire when the twilight
ends,

A gallant heart and the voice of friends,

forting reply.

a large way as to the excellent train service each had in his special locality. One was from the west, one from New England and the other from New York. Two men had told of marvelous doings of trains and it was distinctly "up" to the New Yorker.

"Now in New York," he said, "we not only run our trains fast, but we also start them fast. I remember the case of a friend of mine whose wife went to see him off for the west on the Pennsylvania at Jersey City. As the train was about to start my friend said his final good-bye to his wife and leaned down from the car platform to kiss her. The train started and, would you believe it, my friend found himself kissing a strange woman on the platform in Trenton!"

A snobbish young Englishman visiting Washington's home at Mount Vernon was so patronizing as to arouse the wrath of guards and caretakers; but it remained for "Shep" Wright, an aged gardener and one of the first scouts of the confederate army, to settle the gentleman. Approaching "Shep" the Englishman said:

"Ah—er—my man, the hedge!
Yes, I see, George got this hedge from dear old England."

"Reckon he did," replied "Shep."
"He got this whole blooming country from England."

"Uncle Joe" Cannon has a way of speaking his mind that is sometimes embarrassing to others. On one occasion an inexperienced young fellow was called upon to make a speech at a banquet at which ex-Speaker Cannon was also present.

"Gentlemen," began the young fellow, "my opinion is that the generality of mankind in general is disposed to take advantage of the generality of—"

"Sit down, son," interrupted "Uncle Joe." "You are coming out of the same hole you went in at!"

He had a drove of spirited steeds and paused to give them a much needed rest. The storekeeper came out an looked them over casually.

"Want a horse?"

"Guess not."

"I'll take it out in goods," said the stranger. "I'll take it out in tobacco, in fact."

"Might do some business along these lines," responded the storekeeper, "if we kin agree on a basis."

"Well, I'll trade with you, plug for plug,"—Judge.

BIG FIRE HITS LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 23.—
A million dollar fire destroyed the Union Warehouse company's plant
today, with its great stores of groceries and provisions. The entire fire department of Los Angeles was called out to fight the blaze. Before the firemen's arrival a tremendous explosion blew out the roof of the building, flames shooting 100 feet high.

KAZAN
By James Oliver Curwood
Author of The Danger Trail, The Honor of The Big Snows, Philip Steele, Etc.
Copyright 1914, The Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"Ho, Thorpe!—Thorpe!" he called again.

This time Thorpe replied.
"Hello, McCready—is that you?"

McCready drew the flap back a little, and spoke in a low voice.
"Yes. Can you come out a minute?
Something's happening out in the woods. Don't wake up your wife!"

He drew back and waited. A minute later Thorpe came quietly out of the tent. McCready pointed into the thick spruce.

"I'll swear there's some one nosing around the camp," he said. "I'm certain that I saw a man out there a few minutes ago, when I went for a log.
It's a good night for stealing dogs.
Here—you take the lantern! If I wasn't clean fooled, we'll find a trail in the snow."

He gave Thorpe the lantern and picked up the heavy club. A growl rose in Kazan's throat, but he choked it back. He wanted to snarl forth his warning, to leap at the end of his leash, but he knew that if he did that, they would return and beat him. So he lay still, trembling and shivering, and whining softly. He watched them until they disappeared —and then waited—listened. At last he heard the crunch of snow. He was not surprised to see McCready come back alone. He had expected him to return alone. For he knew what a club meant!

McCready's face was terrible now.
It was like a beast's. He was hatless.
Kazan slunk deeper in his shadow at the low horrible laugh that fell from his lips—for the man still held the club. In a moment he dropped that,
and approached the tent. He drew back the flap and peered in. Thorpe's wife was sleeping, and as quietly as a cat he entered and hung the lantern on a nail in the tent-pole. His movement did not awaken her, and for a few moments he stood there, staring—staring.

Outside, crouching in the deep shadow, Kazan tried to fathom the meaning of these strange things that were happening. Why had his master and McCready come out into the forest? Why had not his master returned? It was his master, and not McCready, who belonged in that tent. Then why was McCready there?

He watched McCready as he entered,
and suddenly the dog was on his feet, his back tense and bristling, his limbs rigid. He saw McCready's huge shadow on the canvas, and a moment later there came a strange piercing cry. In the wild terror of that cry he recognized her voice—and he leaped toward the tent. The leash stopped him, choking the snarl in his throat.
He saw the shadows struggling now,
and there came a cry after cry. She was calling to his master, and with his master's name she was calling him!

"Kazan—Kazan—"
He leaped again, and was thrown upon his back. A second and a third time he sprang the length of the leash into the night, and the babble cord about his neck cut into his flesh like a knife. He stopped for an instant, gasping for breath. The shadows were still fighting. Now they were upright! Now they were crumpling down! With a fierce snarl he flung his whole weight once more at the end of the chain. There was a snap, as the thong about his neck gave way.

In half a dozen bounds Kazan
made the tent and rushed under the flap. With a snarl he was at Mc-Cready's throat. The first snap of his powerful jaws was death, but he did not know that. He knew only that his mistress was there, and that he was fighting for her. There came one choking gasping cry that ended with a terrible sob; it was McCready. The man sank from his knees upon his back, and as Kazan thrust his fangs deeper into his enemy's throat he felt the warm blood.

The dog's mistress was calling to him now. She was pulling at his shaggy neck. But he would not loose his hold—not for a long time. When he did, his mistress looked down once upon the man and covered her face with her hands. Then she sank down upon the blankets. She was very still. Her face and hands were cold, and Kazan muzzled them tenderly. Her eyes were closed. He snuggled up close against her, with his ready jaws turned toward the dead man. Why was she so still, he wondered.

A long time passed, and then she moved. Her eyes opened. Her hand touched him.

Then he heard a step outside.

It was his master, and with that old thrill of fear—fear of the club—

he went swiftly to the door. Yes, there was his master in the firelight—and in his hand he held the club. He was coming slowly, almost falling at each step, and his face was red with blood. But he had the club! He would beat him again—
beat him terribly for hurting Mc-Cready; so Kazan slipped quietly under the tent-flap and stole off into the shadows. From out the gloom of the thick spruce he looked back, and a low whine of love and grief rose and died softly in his throat. They would beat him always now—after that. Even she would beat him. They would hunt him down and beat him
when they found him.

From out of the glow of the fire
he turned his wolfish head to the depths of the forest. There were no clubs or stinging lashes out in that gloom. They would never find him there.

—or another moment he wavered.
And then, as silently as one of the wild creatures whose blood was partially his, he stole away into the blackness of the night.

CHAPTER IV.
Free from Bonds.

There was a low moaning of the wind in the spruce-tops as Kazan
slunk off into the blackness and mystery of the forest. For hours he lay near the camp, his red and blistered eyes gazing steadily at the tent wherein the terrible thing had happened a little while before.

He knew now what death was. He could tell it farther than man. He could smell it in the air. And he knew that there was death all about him, and that he was the cause of it.
He lay on his belly in the deep snow
and shivered, and the three-quarters of him that was dog whined in a grief-stricken way, while the quarter that was wolf still revealed itself

ARCHIBALD GETS PRAISE FOR HIS 'ZEALOUS SERVICE'

Papers Found in His Effects May Lead to Punishment of Austrian Ambassador's Messenger

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Advice from London says that in one of the thirty-four Austrian and German papers found in the possession of James F. J. Archibald, the American newspaper correspondent, Count von Bernstorff says that Mr. Archibald "is proceeding to Germany to collect material for lectures in the United States in the interest of the German cause."

In another von Bernstorff says: "I have heard with pleasure that you wish once more to return to Germany and Austria after having promoted our interests out here in such a zealous and successful manner."

These results were probable from State of Ohio, City of Toledo, Lucas County, ss. Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is a partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of Hall's Catarrh Cure.

the publication today from London of letters carried by Captain James F. J. Archibald, American correspondent:

1.—Punishment of Archibald for alleged violation of neutrality or "conspiracy."
2.—Return to Germany of Captain Fritz von Papen, German military attaché.
3.—Return to Austria of Austrian Consul General Nuber of New York.
4.—Return to Austria of Austrian Consul Schwegel, St. Louis.

5.—Investigation and possible action against the editor of a Hungarian newspaper of New York.
6.—No action against German Ambassador Bernstorff.

Ambassador Bernstorff's letter of introduction for Archibald stating that Archibald wished "once more to return to Germany and Austria after having promoted our interests here in such a zealous and successful manner," was regarded by officials as evidence of Archibald's violation of neutrality.

Whether Archibald was in the pay of the German and Austrian governments is being investigated by the department of justice. Officials indicated that no more drastic action would follow against Dumba because of disclosures in two new letters made public. Dumba's impending departure from this country will satisfy the administration. Officials pointed out that the two new letters gave additional grounds for sustaining the request for Dumba's recall. While his description of President Wilson's temperament as "self-willed" and his declaration that the president can "force" the house and senate to his will, were not regarded as technical breaches of etiquette by an ambassador, they have aroused resentment.

"Whys" of Moves in European War

BY J. W. T. MASON
(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Bulgaria's mobilization of her army is possibly the prelude to a sensational change in all the present plans of the European war, which may cause the determining struggle to be fought out in the Gallipoli, Egypt and Tripoli.

The Bulgars apparently believe the time is approaching when they must decide whether to enter the war with the quadruple entente or with the Teuton-Ottoman allies. Bulgaria is in no danger of attack from any of her neighbors if she remains strictly neutral and the large expense that must be incurred by mobilization would not be justified if the government's intention were no more than to insure the preservation of neutrality.

It cannot be said positively with whom the Bulgars will cast their lot, but unquestionably the present indication is that both the Sofia government and Czar Ferdinand favor the Teutons.

Simultaneously with the issuance

A Baby's Birthday.

Baby's coming is anticipated with great joy, and it is of the utmost importance that great care is taken to make this important event a happy one.

Mother's Friend, applied externally and to be had of all druggists, is of the greatest value for its child-birth of its agonies and dangers, makes the mother comfortable and helps make baby strong, healthy and vigorous. It is effective and dependable and has been used successfully for many years. Definite instructions are furnished with each bottle.

of Bulgaria's mobilization orders the German iron cross has been conferred on Czar Ferdinand by command of the Kaiser.

If the highly unusual proceeding means more than a simple effort to gain Ferdinand's active help; if it is actually a reward for military services rendered the German cause, then Bulgaria's army will soon be assisting the Teutons in the march to the aid of Turkey.

For an Austro-German army to reach Turkey across Bulgaria the northeast corner of Serbia must be crossed. The Bulgars would then move into Serbia to capture Macedonia, and the Teutons would cross Bulgaria into Turkey planning to drive the Anglo-Gallipoli army into the sea and to direct a new Turkish campaign against Egypt and into Tripoli.

The Russian operations would probably have to be halted, so their adequate munition supplies could be sent to Turkey and with the French and Italian deadlocks continuing the war's center of equilibrium would be transferred to the Levant.

TREASURY AGENT TO BE APPOINTED

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 23.—Before the end of the month Governor Phillips will appoint a new state treasury agent to take the place of David D. Davies of Milwaukee, who has accepted a trusteeship of the county institutions in Milwaukee. It is said that no assistant treasury agent will be appointed. This position, which has heretofore paid $1,200 a year will probably be discontinued by the governor according to his statements to several who made applications for the position. The governor is said to have declared that the assistant position is a sinecure. The indications here are that Mike Laffey of Milwaukee may be appointed as treasury agent.

AN EXAMPLE OF SCHOOL EFFICIENCY

A "W. B. U." graduate, Miss Lucella Westeras, an Onalaska girl, goes at once to a position with the Mankato Milling Company at a salary of eighty-five dollars per month to begin with. There is a school right there at Mankato, too.

This is nothing unusual. Our graduates always succeed. Everyone knows they do.

"W. B. U." graduates are the only ones who receive real salaries to begin with. Business men have not time to fool around with incompetents.

We place more students in positions than the high school and other business colleges combined. We place more in good positions every month and we stand ready to prove it in the public press today to all who want to see if we have the proof. All schools may look alike until you graduate and want a real position, then there is a difference.

Send your thinking now. Do your catalogue and some real proof. Address Wisconsin Business University, La Crosse, Wis.

The only school that can really prepare you to earn a living without "working for experience." Those who have a sense of humor are beginning to smile.

Former Resident Succumbs to Long Illness; Body Will Be Brought Here for Burial

Mrs. George Phillips, 1216 Avon street, received a telegram early this morning announcing the death of her sister, Mrs. Rose Martelle, at 1 o'clock this morning at her home in Minneapolis. Death was due to cancer.

Mrs. Martelle, a widow, was formerly Miss Rose Lee of the town of Campbell. She has been ailing for the past two years, and since she underwent an operation for cancer a year ago, she has been confined to her bed.

Three daughters, Mrs. Belle Shane, and the Misses Hazel and Bessie Lee of Minneapolis; two sisters, Mrs. Ernest Horner and Mrs. George Phillips, both of La Crosse, and three brothers, Charles and Henry Lee of Portland, and John Lee of Duluth, Minn., survive her.

Funeral arrangements have not been made with the exception that the body will be brought to this city for burial. Services will be held from the home of her sister, Mrs. Ernest Horner.

WOODWARD ENGAGED IN REFORM WORK

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 23.—Rev. Daniel Woodward, for nearly four years warden of the state prison at Waupun, but who was displaced early in the spring through the election of Henry Towne, is now engaged in prison reform work at Butte, Mont.

Letters received by friends of Dr. Woodward indicate that he is well pleased with his new work. He declares that western prisoners believe in rational prison reform and that in his new work he is receiving much encouragement. The work of which Rev. Woodward has charge has been reorganized under the name of the Montana Society for the Friendless, which will deal not only with criminal classes, but will extend the work to other unfortunate.

"DEATH CROSSING" IS THING OF PAST AS TRACK VANISHES

Street Car Rails Over Milwaukee Road at Mill Street Torn Up; Go Over Bridge

With the removal of the crossing tracks of the Wisconsin Railway. Light and Power company at the Mill street crossing, and the tracks on Mill street from Car street to St. Cloud, every vestige of the famous Death Crossing will be done away with as concerns street railway patrons. Since the completion of the Rose street viaduct, built as the direct and logical outgrowth of several fatal accidents on the crossing, the tracks of the street railway company have been made unnecessary at the crossing.

The company's crew has completed the work of tearing out the crossing rails, in conjunction with the track crew of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, which has been substituting heavy grade straight rails for the special crossing type. The track along Mill street will also be torn up at this time.

As a matter of convenience to traffic by vehicle along the street, the Wisconsin Railway Light and Power company have stationed two men, one at the intersection of Mill and Hagar streets, and the other at Mill and Gould streets, to deflect the traffic over the viaduct, because of the closing of the crossing to traffic during the repair.

HOW SHE ENDED TEN YEARS OF SKIN-TORTURE
Oct. 28, 1914:—"I had eczema on my face for ten years. Little red pimples formed in a small spot on my chin and then spread all over my face. They itched and burned me awfully. It was certainly embarrassing to me, and I would not go amongst people. I tried almost every remedy and treatment that could be used for this trouble, but nothing did me any good. I used Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, and was relieved in a day or two. In one month I was cured. This was six months ago and the trouble has never returned."—(Signed) Mrs. C. C. Roberts, Weatherford, Okla.
The Resinol treatment speedily heals eczema, rashes, ringworm, and other eruptions, and clears away disfiguring pimples and blackheads, even when other treatments prove worse than useless. Doctors have prescribed Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap for eighteen years, and all druggists sell them.

Buskin Trials Soon
The Buskin club with its fifteen members from last year is planning an active season. The annual try-out for the new memberships to bring the number of active members up to thirty, which will be held week after next, is expected to bring forth strong competition. The entire society sits as judges at this contest, selecting those who, as custom demands, will tender the judges a banquet and dance, one of the "events" in this club's history. The work of the Buskin club this year will mark a departure from its work previously in that the drama and its evolution will be closely studied under the direction of Mr. D. O. Coate. Several dramas will be read, and one large production staged, as usual.
The Y. W. C. A. has already rendered a large part of its service in the school. Acting under Miss Grace Hubbard as president, the members have met the non-resident girls as they came into the city, aided them in getting settled, and are now busily engaged in acquainting the young ladies with each other, being ever on the lookout for the girls' social and spiritual welfare. Several teas have been held as a means to this end. It is the association's aim to get every girl student situated in some Sunday school or Bible class in a local church.

Y. M. C. A. is Busy
The Y. M. C. A. organized last year, is planning similar work for the boys. William Reid, as president, plans to co-operate with the Y. W. C. A. in holding meetings on Sunday afternoons once or twice a month. The "Y. M." meets every Sunday while the "Y. W." holds its gatherings on Tuesdays after school. A. C. Gran of the local "Y." has talked to the students concerning the privileges of the men's association and its work.
The college students completed their organization yesterday. Officers were elected and a social committee consisting of Julian Bloom, Elizabeth Lyons and David Moore was appointed, its immediate purpose being to provide for a banquet, dance, or some other form of amusement. The officers are: President, William Walker; vice-president, Martha Skaar; secretary, William Reid; treasurer, David Lewis.

PUBLIC DEBATE
Sept 20, 1915.
Editor, La Crosse Tribune, City.
Dear Sir:
Please permit me to call the attention of your readers to the following:
The New York Supreme court sustained the law forbidding Sunday theaters, saying: "It is the right of every citizen to be protected from offenses against decency and against acts which tend to corrupt the morals and delude the moral sense of the community."
We can cite numerous instances of the same nature, but these have no more to do with the laws of Wisconsin than Minnesota's Public Drinking cup has to do with the prohibition of the public drinking cup in Wisconsin.
If the Sunday theater could be conducted under the supervision of a company of Christian men headed by their pastor, with no admission fee charged, which would eliminate the temptations to abuse incident to it as a business traffic, and then a guarantee that all of them should always be conducted in the same way, I think it would be worthy of consideration even in Wisconsin.
It is proposed to give the people what they want. This is often quite a different thing from giving them what they should have. Give a man liquor because he wants it and you cultivate his taste for more liquor. Give the common mass of a community what they want in the way of amusement and the almost inevitable result will be to cultivate their tastes downward. It is the privilege of lofty moral principles in a community to call to the general mass of the community, not necessarily giving them what they want, but cultivating their taste for the pure and lofty until they will be satisfied with nothing but the best.
A New York business firm invited any desiring a $3,000 clerkship to call Saturday. Two were told, "Call Monday for my answer." Monday the employer said to one: "You have just the mental qualities and experience our business needs; but you spent yesterday at Coney Island. I am not a church member; but as a business man have learned that it is not safe to trust any one with large financial responsibility who spends Sunday in sport." The other man had been at Church Sunday and was accepted. When these facts were related in a Milwaukee Sabbath school the superintendent, who for years had held leading positions with large business firms, said: "I have heard several business men in this city say the same thing."
Sincerely yours,
J. E. WATSON.

Dear Sir:
Please permit me to call the attention of your readers to the following:
The New York Supreme court sustained the law forbidding Sunday theaters, saying: "It is the right of every citizen to be protected from offenses against decency and against acts which tend to corrupt the morals and delude the moral sense of the community."
We can cite numerous instances of the same nature, but these have no more to do with the laws of Wisconsin than Minnesota's Public Drinking cup has to do with the prohibition of the public drinking cup in Wisconsin.
If the Sunday theater could be conducted under the supervision of a company of Christian men headed by their pastor, with no admission fee charged, which would eliminate the temptations to abuse incident to it as a business traffic, and then a guarantee that all of them should always be conducted in the same way, I think it would be worthy of consideration even in Wisconsin.
It is proposed to give the people what they want. This is often quite a different thing from giving them what they should have. Give a man liquor because he wants it and you cultivate his taste for more liquor. Give the common mass of a community what they want in the way of amusement and the almost inevitable result will be to cultivate their tastes downward. It is the privilege of lofty moral principles in a community to call to the general mass of the community, not necessarily giving them what they want, but cultivating their taste for the pure and lofty until they will be satisfied with nothing but the best.
A New York business firm invited any desiring a $3,000 clerkship to call Saturday. Two were told, "Call Monday for my answer." Monday the employer said to one: "You have just the mental qualities and experience our business needs; but you spent yesterday at Coney Island. I am not a church member; but as a business man have learned that it is not safe to trust any one with large financial responsibility who spends Sunday in sport." The other man had been at Church Sunday and was accepted. When these facts were related in a Milwaukee Sabbath school the superintendent, who for years had held leading positions with large business firms, said: "I have heard several business men in this city say the same thing."
Sincerely yours,
J. E. WATSON.

AUGUST FIRE LOSS CLIPPED IN TWO
Total Is Less Than Half of Monthly Average of Year Ending on June 30

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 23.—During the month of August, 165 fires occurred in Wisconsin, according to the return made to the fire marshal department in the office of the commissioner of insurance. The total losses represented $156,570, covered by insurance of $885,660.
This is less than one-half of the average monthly loss for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, which was $363,633. The total fire loss during the year ending June 30 was $4,364,195.
Among counties, Milwaukee naturally had by far the largest number, a total of 31. However, the Milwaukee losses totaled but $15,140, which is but a little above Price county with a total loss of $14,800 from four fires. Vernon county had seven fires (chiefly barns) with a loss of $2,100; Winnebago, six with a loss of $3,930; Douglas, six with a loss of $2,100; Brown, four with a loss of $12,000; and Fond du Lac three with a loss of $9,835. Dane county suffered a loss of $4,605 from four fires.

From the standpoint of property damage, dwellings come first in number with a total of 52 fires and a loss of $27,275. There were 46 barn fires with a loss of $52,905 and eight store fires with a loss of $8,175. Two cheese factories were destroyed at a loss of $2,410 and five garages were damaged at a loss of $17,325.
The majority of the barn losses were due to lightning which was the cause of 18 fires. None of the buildings struck were equipped with lightning rods. Losses by lightning amounted to $20,135. Twenty-five fires were of unknown origin and resulted in a loss of $32,925. Six fires were charged to incendiarism, thirteen to children with matches, eleven to kerosene stove explosions, nine to spontaneous combustion, seven to defective wiring, six to smokers, four to tramps, three to gasoline explosions and two to gasoline stove explosions.

MRS. M'ELDOWNEY
"BIG 38" IN SLANG
OF SEERS' RINGHow She Parted from $15,500 to Prof. Jimmy Ryan
Told in History of Chicago Police Shake-up

CLEVER SWINDLE IS EXPOSED

Clairvoyants' Methods of Gaining Victim's Confidence Are Revealed

How Mrs. Hope L. McElowney of West Salem, in her flyer in clairvoyancy, "fell" to the extent of $15,500 for the wiles and mining stock of "Jimmy" Ryan, famous member of the Ryan-Bertsche-Ryan clairvoyant trust in Chicago, and how the swindlers paid "protection" money to the police of the Windy City, including Captain John J. Halpin himself, is related in a recent article written by Burton Rascoe. The writer describes graphically the methods used by the clairvoyants in extracting money from the dupes, and of the clever, successful attempts of the seers to instill in their victims a sense of confidence in themselves.

When a woman came in she was asked by an attendant to write out a list of questions she wanted to know, put down her name and address, and place the paper on her forehead. The attendant would later place the paper on his forehead, mumbling to himself and going through some mystic hokus-pokus with his free hand. This finished, he would substitute a blank piece of paper he had in his hand for the one with the questions on it and hand it to her, all the time keeping her attention by questions and answers. Before she would have time to recognize the substitution she would be asked if she wanted to retain the sheet any longer, and upon her replying she didn't (which the clients did, nine times out of ten), the attendant would tear it up and keep the original for the later use of the "professor."

The Copper Stock Game
These schemes worked—all of them. Even the swindlers on the witness stand later still believed that the Ryan brothers possessed uncanny psychic gifts. The women especially came back for more costly readings through the confidence the crooks inspired, and usually asked how they should invest the money left them. The "professor" at such questions would immediately get in touch with the spirit world and learn what were the best money making propositions on the current market of the mundane world. Usually the spirits expressed a preference for copper mining stocks. The Ryan brothers had several bales of gold stenciled and engraved copper mining stock certificates always on hand. The "professor" would ever be pleased to make the investment and would assure the client that big dividends would be forthcoming with the stock rising in price all the while. The certificates came in handy. Every month or so the suckers would receive a few dollars "dividends" on the stock, and "kid them along."

The Rascoe article details at length the history of Chicago's greatest police shake-up, to which Mrs. McElowney's troubles were the unwitting preface. Concerning the McElowney case, Mr. Rascoe writes as follows:

Mrs. Hope L. McElowney, formerly of West Salem, Wis., chose about $15,500 worth of "Jimmy" Ryan's stock certificates. Mrs. McElowney, in consequence of her extreme gullibility and her belief in ready cash, was known as "Jimmy's Big 38," all the other suckers were known as "thirty-eights."

Mrs. McElowney was stopping at a loop hotel when she read "Professor Crane's" fortune telling advertisement. In company with a Mrs. Cooper she had known in Davenport, Ia., she went to "Jimmy's" suite. At the door of the studio Mrs. McElowney fell hard for the "paper on your forehead" stunt, and of course she was utterly astonished when she was finally permitted to see the "professor" to hear him tell her not to worry about her son, that she should remain in Chicago, and that should she go to California she would most certainly meet misfortune. These were the questions she had written on the paper the attendant had "destroyed."

An Evil Influence
Mrs. McElowney had been in conference with the "professor" but a very short time when he was able to divine that there was a certain evil influence following her. It was too bad to have a thing like that troubling a woman who otherwise was destined to enjoy great prosperity—he would remove the evil influence for $20. He removed her $20 at last.

Two days later she called again at the suite and the "professor" was astonished to see how completely the evil influence had been banished through his humble agency. She ought by all means to stay in Chicago, and if she had some one in whom she could confide about her investments she would meet the greatest kind of success. In the meantime he would look around and see what he could do.

Dividends in Ten Days
When she came again the "professor" had had a conference "with a father and an uncle who were on the board of trade." They, he informed Mrs. McElowney, would exercise great influence for her. He himself would take care of the investments. Mrs. McElowney turned over to him a draft for $400 and $100 in cash. Ten days later she received $121 in dividends on her "investment."

This quick dividend idea appealed to Mrs. McElowney. She got a draft for $2,500 and turned it over to Ryan. Another consideration dividend inspired Mrs. McElowney with great ambitions. She drew on her bank for $12,500 in one lot.

The Love Idyll Begins
On top of it all "Jimmy" grew or assumed to grow, first platonically and then passionately interested in his fair client with the big bank roll. He wrote her mash notes, took her to all the best shows and cafes, lavished money on her (her own, to be exact, but money), and in general showed her a good time.

The little idyll, not very idyllically, had a most unhappy ending. Mrs. McElowney ran out of cash and "Jimmy" ran out of ardor. The dividends failed to come around as frequently and in such amounts as was promised. "Jimmy" ran out of promises and ran out of patience. Presently there was a whole slough of suckers yelling to get their money back and their complaints were too numerous to be ignored. "Jimmy" skipped town and went to Kansas City. The "protection" scheme failed to operate.

Victims Take Revenge
"Jimmy" was extradited. He, Frank and "Barney" were charged of operating confidence games. The gullible ones who had handed over their coin tumbled over themselves to testify against the Ryan-Bertsche combination. "Old Doc" Russell aired his wrongs by way of testifying against the trust which had driven him out of business, and very quickly the state had evidence enough to convince the jurors that the Ryans and Bertsche ought to be sent down for a while in the "strut" at Joliet.

This conviction, when he thought he was immune, galled Bertsche. He had reasons to doubt the efficacy of the collusion he had worked so hard to build up between police and crook. Hence the Rialto duel and hence his testimony against detectives to whom he said he had paid protection money for the clairvoyants. Hence, also, the expose of the neat little system he had built up.

How It Worked
According to Bertsche's testimony, every month he went around and collected $100, $200 and up (according to the rise and fall of "protection" demands) from each of the clairvoyants. Then he would, in his Randolph street saloon or elsewhere, distribute the money to the detectives on the beat and to Captain Halpin himself. The usual method of distribution was explained. Crooks and detectives would ask for a matchbox containing folded bills and the detective would strike on it a match he had in his hand and then pocket the matchbox. Easy!

"Jimmy" Ryan, on the stand against Egan and O'Brien, told of a raid by Egan and his partner in which Ed McCabe, another clairvoyant, was arrested. He said he paid $250 of the $500 paid to Egan for the release of the prisoner. He asserted Bertsche had handed the money to Egan and said as he did so: "Now for — sake, lay off on these boys. They are giving up and you know it. Better lay off them or you

EXHIBIT GIVEN TO
TO THE LIBRARY

Religious Education Institute's Collection of Sunday School Literature Is Turned Over to City

It was announced yesterday at the closing session of the Institute of Religious Education, that the entire exhibit of Sunday school books shown during the week, is to remain in town. It is the gift of the University of Chicago Press to the library.

The plan of the local committee of the institute is to increase the collection by soliciting sets of graded lessons from all the denominational publishing houses. This will enable any teacher to come abreast of the latest ideas in his own or any other denomination, or to learn what the inter-denominational courses afford.

The Scribner's publications already promised and they are expected here within a week or so.

The library attendants have been close students of the methods of the institute during the week. They are prepared to answer questions and to hand out literature on various courses as may be desired.

CITY SAVES ON

It is expected that these exhibits of Sunday school methods will serve the entire community and outlying towns as well. The suggestion has been made, also, that any similar instituting that may be held by neighboring towns be permitted to borrow the collection, simply by paying express charges both ways and complying with the general rules of the library.

City Wants to Buy Brick
Brick has been purchased for city paying contracts by the contractors performing the work, prices of the brick being quoted in their bids. Mayor Bentley's contention has been that were the city to purchase the brick and provide it to the contractors, a considerable saving might be effected.

BODY OF ARABIC
VICTIM IS FOUND

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—A cable received today at the state department from American Consul Frost at Queenstown reported the recovery of the body of Dr. Edmund F. Woods of Janesville, Wis., one of the two American Arabic victims.

The widow wired the department to have Consul Frost take charge of the body and stated interment would probably be in England.

might get your fingers burned." Egan "laid off," and Ryan et al. went right on swindling.

The Final Breakdown
After the Egan arrest, Frank Ryan said he told Bertsche he wanted to see Captain Halpin and get assurance that nothing like that would happen again. He said Egan came to arrest him and, not finding him, took the others—a situation painful in the extreme to Frank and designed to hamper his activities to such an extent as to be at least disconcerting. Bertsche, according to Frank, got into communication with Captain Halpin and that official made a personal visit to Frank's "bookstore." Into the sympathetic ears of the chief of detectives Frank poured his tale of persecution. "Well, Frank," spoke the paid protector of the people (according to Frank's testimony), "you needn't be afraid. I'll protect you. The Egan affair doesn't happen any more. Cheer up and go on with your work. You have no cause to worry. You'll be taken care of."

To seal the agreement, according to Frank, Bertsche paid the chief of detectives $500!

But the boys weren't taken care of. The system had to break down, just as the Rosenthal-Becker system had to break down in New York. The good old days of crooked police who help crooks swindle people instead of protecting the people from the crooks, probably still are with us, but Bertsche's organization is one with Nineveh and Tyre. Bertsche's Ryan's, Egan's and O'Brien's penitentiary sentences and the trial over in the Criminal Courts building is the evidence offered.

FINANCIERS HOPE

Anglo-French Commissioners Keep Out of Sight and Attempt Is Seen to Reach Conclusion

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Though admitting that negotiations between the allies' financial envoys and American bankers for a loan of three-quarters of a billion dollars have struck a snag of some sort, New York bankers interested in the discussion would not say today that the situation was deadlocked.

After yesterday's mysterious behavior of the Anglo-French financial commissioners in keeping completely out of sight, it was reported that they were closeted in an attempt to arrive at some conclusion that would be acceptable to American bankers while, at the same time, retaining as much of their original demands as possible.

East Only Hope
WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—The allies must depend upon the banking interests of the east to float the proposed $500,000,000 war loan, for no help can be given by the rank and file of western banks, according to a statement made today by a treasury department official.

There is scarcely a bank in Chicago, he said, which dares shoulder any portion of a war loan to the allies, through fear of strongly entrenched German interests. Such banks as are not dependent upon the German-American interests for support, he said, are involved with the packing house and Rockefeller interests, both of which are admitted antagonistic to an Anglo-French loan.

Interpretation would materially impede Germany in her conduct of warfare, hardly any particular disadvantages to American citizens would result from the German interpretation since they receive full reparation for any property damage sustained.

Conditional Contraband Favored
Nevertheless the German government, in order to furnish the American government evidence of its conciliatory attitude, has issued orders to the German navy forces not to destroy American merchantmen which have loaded conditional contraband even when the conditions of international law are present but to permit them to continue their voyage unhindered if it is not possible to take them into port. On the other hand it must reserve to itself the right to destroy vessels carrying absolute contraband whenever such destruction is permissible according to the provision of the Declaration of London.

A third man, Orlin Kalderwit, was also convicted of the crime.

The board of pardons, composed of Governor Charles Hamond, Chief Justice Brown, and Attorney-General Smith, were slated to make the trip today to have a special interview with the prisoners, and it was learned in a letter received by Mrs. Harris the first week in September that the matter of the freedom of the three men would be definitely settled at the conference following the interview today.

FRENCH AVIATORS
ATTACK STUTTGART

One Hundred Bombs Dropped on Royal Palace and Railway Station in Capital of Wurtemberg

PARIS, Sept. 23.—A French aerial squadron on Wednesday raided Stuttgart, capital of the kingdom of Wurtemberg, and dropped a hundred bombs on the royal palace and the railway station.

The raiders also dropped a number of bombs on the towns and villages passed in the voyage to Stuttgart from the French lines and on the return. The aeroplanes were fired upon by many anti-air craft batteries during the voyage, but all returned safely.

"In retaliation for the bombardments by the Germans of open towns and civilian populations of France and England," the official statement says, "a group of aeroplanes set out this morning to bombard Stuttgart."

French Flyers Shot Down
BERLIN, via Wireless to London, September 23.—Four French aviators were shot down by German troops yesterday in what this afternoon's official bulletin described as a day of "the greatest aircraft and artillery action along the entire front."

American Consulate Hit
WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—The American consulate at Stuttgart, Germany, was struck by a fragment from a bomb during the French aeroplane raid last Tuesday. American Consul Higgins today cabled the state department that none of the occupants was injured, but did not give the extent of damage to the building.

LOCAL MAN DIES
OF UNKNOWN CAUSE
ON MEXICAN RANCH

Word Received Here Today That Henry Horne Is Dead on Farm in Interior of Republic

Henry E. Horne, proprietor of a lemon grove at Tolosa, in the interior of Mexico, died at his home there yesterday, according to a telegram received by Mrs. Horne last night at her home here, 115 South Tenth Street. The cause of his death was not given in the telegram. The message was signed by Mr. Horne's private secretary, Mr. Woolrich.

For the past ten years Mr. Horne has been located in the heart of Mexico, conducting a rubber plantation. The property is now given over to the growth of lemons.

It is not known whether the body can be brought back to the city for burial or not, because of the unsettled civic conditions, and the fact that there are no embalmers in the country. Mr. Drake of the Elbertson-Drake undertaking parlors, wired the American consulate at Salina Cruz and Horne's private secretary to care for the body and to take the necessary steps to have it removed to this country if possible.

The message from Mr. Woolrich, who has been with Mr. Horne for a number of years, asked for no instructions as to the final disposition of the body, and failed to state the cause of his death. He was writing the particulars to Mrs. Horne, he said.

No funeral arrangements have been made owing to the uncertainty of bringing the body back to this country for burial.

His widow and three children, Ella of Ortonville, Minn., and Walter and Henry, Jr., both of La Crosse, survive him.

PLUMBING BILL IS TO BE REVISED IN ACCORD WITH KICK

Objections Many Against Bill in Present Form and Committee Is Named to Make Changes

Because of numerous objections to the proposed plumbing ordinance as now drafted, the bill, after a session last night at which members of the ordinance committee, local plumbers and Frank R. King of the state board of health were in conference, was referred to a special committee to make the changes which were suggested. The special committee consists of Chairman Schneeberger of the ordinance committee, City Attorney J. E. Higbee, City Engineer George Bradish and Mr. King.

When the special committee has completed its revision the bill will be laid before the ordinance committee again.

The objections last night included protests against charging a fee of 75 cents an hour for plumbing inspection; against the provision in the present draft that the plumbing inspector must be a resident; and against the proposed $10 license fee to be charged journeymen plumbers.

BERLIN REPORTS

Evidence Submitted Tends to Show Ship Struck a Mine Planted for Destruction of Divers

BERLIN, via The Hague, Sept. 23.—The admiralty has submitted to the foreign office a memorandum declaring positively that no German submarine attacked the Allan liner Hesperian. The admiralty memorandum suggests that possibly a British mine, intended for the destruction of German U-boats, sent the Hesperian to the bottom off the Irish coast.

The admiralty informed the foreign office, it was learned today, that the last of the German submarines operating in British waters on the day an explosion wrecked the Hesperian, has reported. No submarine attacked any liner answering the description of the Hesperian, the admiralty reported, and no submarine was in the vicinity of the Hesperian when the explosion tore her side open.

The submarine boat commanders reported that they sighted mines floating in the Irish sea, and off the Irish coast. These mines, it was said, apparently were mined for the purpose of sinking German U-boats.

The admiralty memorandum is understood to have been delivered by the foreign office yesterday or the day previous. It probably will be embodied in a note to America. It was reported in some quarters today that such a note already had been delivered at the American embassy, but this report was not confirmed either by foreign office officials or by Ambassador Gerard.

Many Attracted by Prospect of Double-Barreled Big Time Feature Show at Majestic

Advance seat sale today indicated that the announcement of Reine Davies, vaudeville star par excellence, as the feature attraction of the Majestic's new bill which opened this afternoon, had attracted much attention in the city. Miss Davies is a well-known moving picture star, as well as noted for her great beauty and vaudeville cleverness. With Sherman, Van and Hyman she is leader of the greatest double-barreled vaudeville bill the season is likely to bring to La Crosse. The last named trio is one of the most famous vaudeville acts on the "big time."

NORMAL STUDENTS
FREED FOR FAIR

Normal students will be enabled to visit the Interstate fair next week on three afternoons, viz: Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. President Cotton stated that sessions will be held as usual on the first two days. That students may view the attractions more closely than the windows of their class rooms permit, periods on the last three school days will be shortened to about thirty minutes, giving the student his freedom at noon.

SPOTLIGHTS

FISK O'HARA
"There is not a country in Western Europe that can claim the great antiquity for its music that Ireland can," maintains Fiske O'Hara, the star of "Kilkenny" at La Crosse Theatre Tuesday, Sept. 28. The popular Irish tenor is an enthusiast on the subject of Celtic music and literature and has made a deeper study of it than most singers usually do. On its great antiquity and culture he is especially warm in his appreciation and loses no opportunity of talking on the subject.

"The melodies we admire so much today can often be traced back to an Eastern or Oriental origin," he claims. "It is a far cry from the present time back to the days of St. Ambrose, in the fourth century, but we have to go back there to get at the root of the question, if indeed we may stop there. Some of our historians trace the Irish harp back to the Egyptians, from whom the early Milesian adventurers obtained it. The date of their arrival in Ireland is estimated at about 2,000 B. C. Our traditions tell us that one of the princes, Amergin, was a poet and a harper. On the division of the Irish, and another of them, Heremon, took as the insignia on his standard, a harp of gold. There is no doubt that the musical strains brought over by these early settlers had some effect on the music of later days."

"JAPLAND"
"Walpurgis Night," ballet extraordinary, as given by the Imperial Opera companies of St. Petersburg and Moscow, is one of the splendid terpsichorean features with "Japland," the new operatic minstrel farce-comedy that comes to the La Crosse Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 29 and 30. Princess Orlah, a classic oriental dancer of rare ability, assisted by a girl chorus of twenty, will interpret its dances. The arrangement used by Orlah is identical with the Pavlova version and, as given by Mr. Vogel's double symphony orchestra, comes under the heading of a Gounod classic.

BEANEATERS' BOSS GOES AHEAD AND TAKES NO CHANCES

Carrigan Refuses to Depend on "Mathematical Impossibilities" and Takes Pair

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—None of that "watchful waiting" stuff for Bill Carrigan. Instead of sitting back and waiting for the Tigers to eliminate themselves in the American league pennant hunt by the "mathematical impossibility" route, Boss Bill goes out and grabs a pair of games a day so as to hurry the eventual date when cold figures declare it impossible for him to lose the flag. To wit: Boston's twin win over Cleveland's Indians yesterday.

The Red Sox mentor is taking no chances, either, of the banner slipping away from him at this eleventh hour. He worked "Dutch" Leonard and George Foster, two of his premier hurlers, yesterday, despite cold weather and the popularity believed theory that anybody with a glove could lick Cleveland. The Carrigan plan apparently is "Be sure you've won, then go ahead."

Today in Chicago, the home of wrecked pennant hopes, Pat Moran's promenading Phils are billed to fight twice with the collapsed Cubs. It has become a baseball axiom that the Cubs always are dangerous whether they be in first or last place and it's a safe bet the Irish wizard is going to take no chances of having the Chicago clan blackmail him with the perfume of a world's series financial feast already in his nostrils.

From now on, it's everybody against the winners—the Phils and Red Sox. And both Moran and Carrigan are too foxy, both have seen too many ball games lost and won in the ninth after two were down, to take any chances of losing at this late stage.

MINNEAPOLIS—University of Minnesota athletic circles were indignant today over an attempt alleged to have been made by a Dartmouth college agent to induce Quist, Gopher star end, to enter Dartmouth college.

NEW YORK.—After a five year absence, football was revived today at Columbia, when a squad of about seventy men reported to Coach Metcalf for initial workouts. Practically every man in the squad is green timber and the coaches are facing a monumental task in building up a team.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Harry Legore, last year's star fullback, now on the second team, electrified on-lookers in practice by grabbing a punt and racing ninety yards through the whole "varsity" team to a touchdown.

PRINCETON, N. J.—Tiger footballers displayed their wares behind closed gates today. With the Georgetown game only two days off, coaches deemed it wise to do some secret work.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—Another day of stiff scrimmage was scheduled for Crimson football men today. Enright probably will be in the back field Saturday as there seems some doubt as to King's eligibility.

Bankston, a Mackian recruit, Walter Pipp of the Yanks and Doctor Lavan of the Browns were the four swatters yesterday.

DON'T TIRE CHILD OF RELIGION SAYS MISSCHAMBERLAIN

He's Continually Told He's Not "Saved" and He Does Not Know from What She Explains

MUST HAVE DEFINITE END IN VIEW

Rev. W. J. Peacock Outlines Three Objects to Be Gained in Teaching Child

Rev. W. J. Peacock, pastor of the First Baptist church, made an urgent plea to parents and to Sunday school teachers to have definite ends in view in their religious training of the child, last night, in his address, "The End to be Sought in Religious Education," at the Congregational church which closed the religious educational conference in progress since Sunday for all Protestant churches of La Crosse.

How to Tell Gospel Miss Georgia L. Chamberlain, secretary of the American Institute of Sacred Literature, and well known Bible story teller, who has addressed all sessions of the conference, dwelt last night in an address following that of Rev. Peacock, upon the proper presentation of the story of Christ to the children of different ages.

Rev. Peacock said there were three ends to be achieved in religious education.

"The first end," he said, "is to make the child see himself—just what he is that God has made. Secondly, the child must be taught in such a manner that he can find his proper place among men. He must realize that he owes everything in the world about him to his fellow men. If you educate him in such a manner that he sees this, you give him a glorious awe of the world which will help him to find his life work, and it will be one of service."

"To get right with God," the speaker said, "is the third object of education along religious lines."

Don't Tire Child "Don't make the child tired of religion before you have started upon his Biblical education," said Miss Chamberlain, last night in probably the most interesting of all her addresses.

"The child," she said, "is continually told that he is not 'saved' and he does not know what he ought to be saved from. He is battered with theological terms which Jesus himself did not use, and the child's mind is muddled."

Speaking of story telling, Miss Chamberlain's particular branch of Sunday school work, she said there were few stories which could be told the child under the age of eight.

"You must establish the reality of Christ in the mind of the child," she said. "To the majority of children the deity is a mysterious thing. A valuable asset to the teacher is a conserved historic imagination, to be used in the instruction of smaller children."

Drama in Lessons Miss Chamberlain closed her address with examples of how drama has been introduced successfully into the Sunday school lesson.

SUCCESSOR TO JUDGE VANCE TAKES OFFICE

Will He Maintain Marrying Record of Predecessors?

Question Asked by Friends Today

Judge Robert E. Looby, successor to the late Judge D. E. Vance, the famous "marrying justice" of Winona, who died recently, assumed his new position in the court house yesterday.

Friends of the new judge of probate are today wondering if he will maintain the record of the late Judge Vance, who was called upon to officiate at several weddings during a week.

Judge Looby's first official act was the formal appointment, as clerk of his court, Miss Harriet Maybury. Miss Maybury held the position under Judge Vance for many years.

Cornelius Bischoff Who Is Walking for Government Was Scalped by Moro Savages

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis., Sept. 23.—(Special.)—A. C. Anderson, merchant of Star Valley, near here, was arrested yesterday and arraigned in court here for attempting to stab William A. Knight, constable of Soldiers Grove, with a long cheese knife.

Anderson had gotten into an altercation with a traveling salesman by the name of John Horn of Milwaukee over the payment for some goods which he had purchased. Constable Knight tried to end the argument and was attacked with a knife by Anderson. He was overpowered by spectators.

Anderson was charged with assault and battery with attempt to kill and when arraigned yesterday, was bound over to circuit court, convening in November. He was released on bonds of $500.

ROCKEFELLER ASKS HIS EMPLOYEES TO CALL HIM 'PARTNER'

Son of Oil Magnate Tries to Demonstrate Good Will Is Better Than Dollars

TRINIDAD, Col., Sept. 23.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has decided to break the silence of 26 Broadway maintained by his father, the oil king. Years of turmoil, criticism and investigations have awakened the younger Rockefeller to the fact that dollars are dross without the public's good will. Therefore he is staging the greatest friendship campaign ever attempted in the United States by a financial power. This was the general view taken here today of Rockefeller's projected two weeks inspection of his Colorado interests.

Sleeping in a miner's bunk, digging coal, eating in the miners' "grub shack" and donning overalls are among the least of the methods the son of the world's richest man has used to convince his employees that he is their "partner" as he told them.

The business men of Trinidad, who say they are sick of the recent strike and will be glad when Rockefeller and others connected with the labor war quit making this city the center of attraction, nevertheless, like the oil king's son. They declare he is simple and democratic in his ways but apparently affects his democracy.

Rockefeller hit Trinidad at a bad time. He is playing second fiddle to the county fair. The town is more interested in prize cows, best cakes, finest butter, and horse races than in John D. Jr. The city is crowded but Rockefeller's appearance with a small band of newspapermen on his trail arouses no special interest.

This lack of demonstration rather pleases the young millionaire. He keeps his itinerary secret until the last minute. Often he leaves the official party behind requesting them not to accompany him while he converses with his employees or with their wives.

A false friend is like the shadow on a sun-dial, which appears in fine weather, but vanishes at the approach of a cloud.

WEEK GENERALLY FAVORABLE SAYS WEATHER REVIEW

The week ending Monday was generally favorable to agriculture, says the weekly review of the weather issued from the Milwaukee bureau of the United States department of agriculture. Threshing was interfered in some places by rain. Corn, which escaped early frosts, matured well but not sufficiently to put it out of danger from frosts which Monday and Tuesday nights hit a considerable portion of the state. Much corn is being used in silos.

The week as a whole was fairly favorable to agriculture, the temperature being about normal and the rainfall averaging a little above the normal. In some localities the rain interfered with threshing, but this work is generally near completion. There was also some complaint of potatoes rotting in the ground and suffering from blight in a few sections.

Corn which had not been hit by the early frosts developed and improved well during the week but it is not ripening and will need two weeks of favorable weather to put it out of danger of frost. Pastures are in excellent condition and a good second crop of clover is being cut.

"Silos are being filled, many fields of late corn being used for this purpose on account of fear of frost."

"Plowing progressed well, the rains having put the soil in good condition for this work."

"Warm dry weather is needed, now for ripening late crops and for completing the harvest."

ROSENDALE JUDGE AT THE EXPOSITION
MADISON, Wis., Sept. 23.—Two years of the Wisconsin short course convinced Charles L. Hill of Rosendale that the production of milk and milk products could be made both pleasant and profitable. Answering some of his fancies he started in keeping what has since become known as his herd of profit producing Guernseys. So well has been his success that his name is known to practically every Guernsey owner in the country. His latest recognition came when he was selected to judge his favorite breed at the Panama-Pacific exposition. This feature of the Frisco fair will be held October 15.

The Motor stocks were slightly higher, Studebaker gaining 3/4 over night. Steel opened 78 1/2 an advance of 1/4. Stimulated by western buying the market showed great activity during the first hour. American Woolen advanced 3 1/2 points, going to 57. Steel ranged from 78 to 78 3/4. Baldwin Locomotive touched 88 1/2 with Colorado Fuel & Iron a strong feature.

Reports of a hitch in international loan negotiations was the basis of a bear raid in the late forenoon and at one o'clock prices were still well under the day's high. Colorado Fuel showed a gain of 3 1/4 at 56 1/2. Sales during the first three hours were 650,000 shares.
Dullness in afternoon trading did not bring a break in prices. Steel while inactive, held close to quotations it made on Wednesday. Comparative firmness in prices indicated stocks were strongly held.
The stock market closed strong.

Chicago Grain Review
CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—A shortage of September wheat and hurried covering pending a decision by the board of trade as to whether spring wheat deliveries can be substituted caused sharp advances early today in the local wheat market. Opening prices represented over-night gains of 1 1/4c, 5/8c and 1/2c. Later in the day prices fell back to $1.05 1/4, 94 1/4c and 96 1/4c, which represented recessions from the opening of 1 1/4c in each of the three active futures.

TWIN CITY MOVIE MANFILMS CHOICE SCENES OF CITY

Northwest Weekly Camera Man Here with St. Paul Credit Men Takes 500 Feet of Film Home

TAKES VALLEY PANORAMA
Climbs Grandad with His Camera and Gets Wide View Up and Down the River

W. L. Strong of Minneapolis, who in an interview in the TRIBUNE yesterday declared that La Crosse rivals in scenic magnificence some of the most famous old-world beauty spots, was not the only member of the St. Paul Credit Men's junketing party who found the city worth looking at. Fred C. Place, Northwest Weekly camera man, who came along with the junketers to get pictures of their trip, was so taken with La Crosse that he stayed over a day. When he went back to Minneapolis last night he carried 500 feet in film-photographs of beauty spots about the city, which will be shown in a forthcoming issue of the Northwest Weekly.

One of the unique views Place caught with his camera is a panorama up and down the valley from the crest of Grandad Bluff. The junction of the three rivers, and the long line of retreating headlands extending up the Minnesota shore Place declares to be one of the most remarkable panoramas ever caught in the movies.

In addition to the Grandad Bluff sweep, Place filmed snapshots of the city streets, a glimpse of the river, and a comprehensive picture of Riverside park.

The motion pictures of La Crosse will be seen by thousands of playgoers in movie houses all over the northwest. They are to be incorporated in one of the regular releases of the Northwest Weekly, which will appear at an early date.

JAP SAILORS IN BAD FOR TRYING TO GET INTO U. S.

Party Has Nothing but Hard Luck After Leaving Japan and Are Shipwrecked in Alaska

TOKIO, Aug. 14.—By Mail.—Six Japanese sailors in court yesterday told an exciting story and a sad one of their futile efforts to smuggle themselves into the United States. They finished their story in jail, a place less disagreeable than several into which their misfortunes had thrown them in the course of the past year.

The six are the remnant of the crew of the cockle boat Daiyeli Maru, sixty tons, which left Japan in June, 1914. Ostensibly the craft was headed for the North Pacific fishing grounds. She carried an abundant stock of rice, soy and other Japanese foods.

Right from her home port the Daiyeli's troubles began. Battered by bad weather she had to put back for repairs before getting out of sight of land. On the second attempt twenty days out the captain died. Forty-three days out while rough weather continued, Unimak Island, in the Aleutian chain, was reached. A submerged rock, as the sailors endeavored to make a landing, tore the Daiyeli to pieces.

The sailors were thrown on the shore and into the hands of a party of Eskimos. The natives were kind and made themselves hosts to the refugees from that day, August 19, until May 5. In the spring the Eskimos started on their annual trip to the mainland to get ammunition and fishing gear. A storm drove them back and the son of the Japanese captain was drowned.

The first evidence of good luck was seen in the arrival of a British steamer, May 5, to trade for furs. The Japanese asked for passage to Seattle, apparently leading that officer to believe America was their home, and although they could not promise to pay for their passage, it was given them.

But on the way one of the sailors, let slip the fact that they were endeavoring to smuggle themselves into the United States and were not honest fishermen at all. The welcome hands that awaited the sailors at Seattle were those of the immigration authorities. After a few days in jail the Japanese consul found passage for them on a returning vessel.

Mr. S. Yamakani, editor of a Seattle Japanese newspaper, and an enterprising man, departed a few days ago for America in charge of eleven Japanese girls, who are prepared to embark on the sea of matrimony as soon as they reach land. Eleven fond husbands are waiting, though they haven't seen the brides, nor even a picture of them. Mr. S. Yamakani has taken the place of pictures.

FORGAN AGAINST LOAN

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher
